Blue Books of the Imperial Parliament.—I have the satisfaction of reporting that during the recess the Blue Books of later years have been properly sorted and arranged, and are now in a separate room, where they can (with the aid of indexes) be readily used for reference.

Record Newspapers and Parliamentary Journals.—Since the last meeting of Parliament arrangements have been carried into effect to place the bound record copies of Newspapers and Parliamentary Journals in a separate room, where they have been arranged in chronological order, an arrangement which has already proved to be most convenient.

The usual exchanges have been received with punctuality.

Your obedient Servant,

FRED. A. PACKER,
Clerk of the House, and Librarian to Parliament.

The Hon. the Chief Secretary.
