Library of Parliament, 12th September, 1876.

SIR,

I HAVE the honor to report that I have concluded the annual duty of taking stock of the books in the Parliamentary Library, and have recovered 29 volumes, some of which have been missing from the shelves for many years.

139 volumes have been added to the Library since my last Report. Of these, 11 have been presented by the authors. The usual serials and newspapers have also been supplied.

The number of Books is now 7655 volumes, and they are all in fair order and condition.

I annex (1) a List of Books added since last Report ; (2) a List of Books ordered from the Publishers, but not yet supplied ; (3) a List of Books missing from their places at this date. Every effort will be made to trace them to the persons in whose possession they must be.

I have prepared a full Catalogue, on the system pursued in the Parliamentary Libraries of the adjacent Colonies, copy of which is now annexed.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

HUGH M. HULL,
