Crime (Confiscation of Profits) Amendment (Unexplained Wealth) Bill 2013

The Bill amends the Crime (Confiscation of Profits) Act 1993.

The Bill amends the Crime (Confiscation of Profits) Act 1993 by inserting a new Part 9 containing provisions which -

- (i) enables the Supreme Court to make an unexplained wealth declaration against a person who apparently lives beyond their legitimate income, unless the person can establish that the wealth was lawfully acquired; and
- (ii) allows the Supreme Court to order payment by that person to the State of the amount assessed as being the value of the person's "unexplained wealth"; and
- (iii) provides associated powers of investigation, tracing, preservation of assets and other related matters.
