Shaping Tasmania's water future

Every four years, we submit a detailed plan to the Tasmanian Economic Regulator which sets out the services we will deliver to customers and the price each of us pays in return.

Our next plan is due to be submitted on 1 July 2025 and we want to make sure it reflects the things our customers and community value and expect from us.

We have commenced our community engagement in recent months with more than 3,500 Tasmanians registering to help shape our water future.

We had a phenomenal response to our first community survey with over 1,900 completions giving us an early insight into the priorities and expectations around our price and services.

Leading up to October, our deliberative community panel will take a deep dive into the things that matter to the community and then present their recommendations to us to aid our submission to the Regulator.

Please visit www.taswater.com.au/yoursay to find out how to get involved and to also read the latest updates on the many capital projects we are undertaking around the state.

Inspiring Project Manager takes out top gong

Renewals Project Manager, Catherine Loppy, has taken out the prestigious National Association of Women in Construction (NAWIC) Crystal Vision Award. The award celebrates those who actively promote and encourage participation and career progression of women in construction.

At TasWater, we pride ourselves on fostering an environment where excellence is celebrated and having the best people on the job to deliver your water and sewerage services.

Catherine said the recognition "inspires me to keep doing my best."

"Inspiring the younger generation and encouraging more women with a passion for the construction industry to step forward courageously."

NAWIC National Chairperson, Jennifer Gillett, said "we are truly proud of Catherine... a beacon of inspiration, her achievement fills our community with pride and admiration. Catherine has gone above and beyond as an advocate for change in construction."

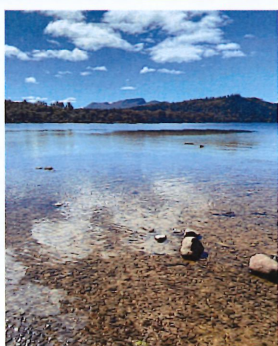

Outside the world of construction, Catherine wears many hats including as an author, blogger and youth mentor.

We hope our customers take pride in knowing their essential services are managed by some of the best professionals in the industry who are committed to unlocking water's full potential.

Showcasing the best of Tasmanian waterways

We have once again been overwhelmed with all of your fantastic photos and artwork submissions, which hero Tasmanian water. Please keep them coming!

If you want to see your photo or artwork here, please send your submissions, along with your name, location, and a brief description of the piece to communications@taswater.com.au

This view of the River Derwent was taken from Michael Dobson's front lawn in Granton and captures the majesty of both the sunrise and one of Tassie's great waterways.

Sean Dargaville sent us a shot of what he captioned "a perfect autumn afternoon at Lake Skinner."

Catherine Muthoni's photo at the iconic Lake St Clair was taken on New Year's Eve last year, which she said was "a beautiful day and a wonderful way to end the year."
