Dear Mr. Parker,

In reply to your letter of the 8th instant, regarding the procedure followed by the House of Assembly relating to regulations, etc., under Acts of Parliament and by-laws of Local Government Bodies that are laid on the Table of the House, I desire to state that every regulation when made must be published in the Gazette and must be laid before each House of Parliament within the first thirty sitting days of such House after such publication, and if neither the Council nor the House of Representatives passes a resolution, of which notice has been given on the Table of the House, within the first fifteen sitting days of such House after such regulation is laid before it, then such regulation shall be void and shall have effect except as regards anything done thereunder prior to the passing of such resolution. I agree with you that this procedure permits of parliamentary control only after the regulations, etc., are in operation; but, unfortunately, I do not see how this difficulty could be overcome without impeding the work of Government Departments in the administration of Acts and also the work of Local Bodies.

No proposal has ever been made to have regulations, etc., submitted to a Parliamentary Committee before being approved by the Governor and I do not think if that were done, it would overcome the difficulty because Parliament could still assert its authority to revise or annul any regulations recommended by the Committee to the Governor.

Dear Mr. Parker,

In reply to your letter of the 8th instant, regarding the procedure followed by the House of Assembly relating to regulations, etc., under Acts of Parliament and by-laws of Local Governing Bodies that are laid on the Table of the House, I desire to state that every regulation when made must be published in the Gazette, and must be laid before each House of Parliament within the first thirty sitting days of such House after such publication, and if either House of Parliament passes a resolution, of which notice has been given, within the first fifteen sitting days of such House after any regulation is laid before it, that such regulation be disallowed, such regulation thereupon shall be void and thenceforth cease to have effect except as regards anything done thereunder prior to the passing of such resolution. I agree with you that this procedure permits of parliamentary control only after the regulations, etc., are in operation; but, unfortunately, I do not see how this difficulty could be overcome without impeding the work of Government Departments in the administration of Acts and also the work of Local Bodies.

No proposal has ever been made to have regulations, etc., submitted to a Parliamentary Committee before being approved by the Governor and I do not think if that were done, it would overcome the difficulty because Parliament could still assert its authority to revise and disallow any regulations recommended by the Committee to the Governor.

Dear Sir,

Referring to the copy of Standing Order relating to Conferences on Bills which the Legislative Council may not amend and which was forwarded to His Excellency the Governor on the 14th instant, I am enclosing herewith a copy of Standing Orders containing special provisions relating to such Bills.

These Standing Orders were first enunciated in 1926 under the provisions of "The Constitution Act, 1910", relating to Bills which the Legislative Council may not amend. When drafting these Standing Orders it was not considered necessary to make provision for conferences between the two Houses, because it was thought that the Joint Standing Orders relating to Conferences - see page 109 - would have met all requirements on this subject; but it was not until 1931 that the first Conference under the 1926 Standing Orders was asked for by the Council, whereupon the Speaker expressed the opinion that the Standing Orders of the Assembly did not give the House power to grant such a request for a Conference; but he pointed out that the Clerk of the House held that the Standing Orders covered all Conferences. The Speaker's opinion was supported by the Attorney-General and the Leader of the Opposition. The House resolved - That there was no provision in the Standing Orders of the House of Assembly relating to Conferences in regard to Bills which the Council may not amend.

The Standing Order referred to, was agreed to by the House of Assembly on the last day of the Session of 1932. The delay in presenting the new Standing Order for His Excellency the Governor's approval was owing to some doubt entertained by me at the time, as to the necessity for submitting to His Excellency the Standing Order, which seemed to me, one merely to remove doubts, rather than a new Standing Order.

Yours faithfully,

Wills:

Ralph Kilpin, Esquire

Acting Clerk of the House of Assembly

South Africa.

Dear Sir,

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of August 18, last relating to the advisability of adopting for your Parliament, a system such as is embodied in the Tasmanian "Constitution Act, 1926" in which the Legislative Council has the right of "requesting" amendments affecting certain Bills.

In reply I desire to state that -

- (1) The system from my point of view works admirably.
- (2) It certainly has obviated disputes between the two Houses.
- (3) On six occasions the Legislative Council has requested the House of Assembly to make amendments. On one of these occasions the House agreed to make the amendment "requested," on four others the House disagreed to make the amendments "requested", and on another occasion the House having disagreed to make the amendment, the Council asked for a Conference; but the Speaker pointed out to the House that there was no provision in the Standing Orders relating to Conferences on Bills which the Council may not amend. A message to this effect was transmitted to the Legislative Council, consequently the Council did not press the matter further, but agreed to the Bill in the form in which it was sent up to it in the first place. The House was of the opinion, however, that the Council should be made for Conferences on these subjects, and a Standing Order was made at the end of last Session to meet these cases. It therefore will not operate until the Session we are now about to enter upon, but I do not anticipate any serious difficulties arising should these Conferences meet at any future time, especially regarding Appropriation Bills, because if the House of Assembly refused to yield to any point in dispute, or to acquiesce in what was desired of the Council must either not press its request for amendment, or take the alternative step of rejecting the whole Bill. Experience tells me that of the alternatives the former would be chosen.

(4). The Legislative Council can make "requests" only for amendments which do not increase any items. Obviously Crown recommendation is not required for this.

(5) As pointed out in paragraph (4) "requests" are not allowed involving increased expenditures.

(6) The answer in paragraph (5) applies.

(7) Ministers who are members of one House have not the right of sitting and speaking in the other House.

Yours faithfully,

Clerk of the House.

P.S. I am enclosing herewith a copy of Standing Orders relating to Bills which the Council may not amend.

In reply to your memorandum of the 26th October stating that, as the funds available for Parliamentary Buildings are very limited, your Department does not consider that a clock for the Press Room is an urgent matter.

It does not follow that because funds available for Parliamentary Buildings are limited, that the necessity for a clock for the Press Room is ^{not} an urgent matter.

The Press Room has never been without a clock, until recently, when it was condemned by Mr. Sharp (Taylor and Sharp) as being unfit for further use. With all due deference to your opinion, I consider that as the Pressmen do screening like twenty-minute shifts, the clock is just as necessary now as ever.
