Dear Inquiry into Discrimination and Bullying in Tasmanian Schools,

Do not allow activists to use their claim of anti-bullying as a cover for the truth. Their gender beliefs in Tasmanian schools are causing more bullying and discrimination. These ideas go against science and create a setting that downplays factual knowledge. School policies must align with biology and safeguard individuals from ideological influence. People cannot change their gender, they cannot alter their biological sex. Studies & reviews now being published in countries around the world are proving that pushing this agenda onto children is having drastic & far reaching lifetime effects. Punishing individuals for speaking out against what amounts to child abuse is wrong, and in itself bullying & discriminatory.

Sincerely,
Mal O'May
