

Lily Blundstone – Conviction

Mr WINTER question to MINISTER for SMALL BUSINESS and CONSUMER AFFAIRS

Harness racing participants note that Lily Blundstone was convicted of two counts of causing grievous bodily harm by negligent driving and sentenced to 10 weeks jail, which was wholly suspended for 12 months on the condition that she commit no more offences. Terrible.

Given that Ms Blundstone was working at the time, towing a trailer with defective brakes provided by her employer, working 18 hours straight with only a 14-minute break and being paid in cash, and was not covered by workers compensation, what action is the government taking against Ben Yole Racing, her employer, who put Miss Blundstone in this position?
