Subject: Greyhound racing is inherently cruel

Dear Stephanie Hesford,

It is evident that the greyhound racing is inherently cruel. Practices such as 'live-baiting' using native possums, rabbits, piglets and kittens, and the slaughter of unwanted 'waste' greyhounds, are inarguably cruel.

The industry over-breeds greyhounds and cannot survive without killing 'unwanted' greyhounds. This is simply unacceptable and I call on you to put an end to greyhound racing.

I await the outcome of the inquiry and am optimistic that Committee members will find that the industry is broken and has no place in our society.

Sincerely,

Aimee Bound
