MEMORANDUM.

THESE Returns were compiled by J. E. Calder, Surveyor-General, and Messrs. H. E. Smith, H. J. Hull, and Alexander Reid, of the Survey Department.

Survey Office, July, 1863.

SIR,

I HAVE the honor of presenting to you a paper relating to the Agricultural Trade of Tasmania, which I have written as a fitting preface for a revised edition of the Official Pamphlet which is prepared in this office, namely, The Lands of Tasmania, now ready for publication.

It will be found to contain much information of interest to our farmers and exporters of agricultural produce. And, to make it as complete as I could, I have appended several Tables to it, compiled from the most reliable records at command, all of them either directly or remotely illustrative of this trade.

I will commence by stating that, in dealing with the subjects referred to in this paper, I have not thought it advisable to select any particular year for results wherewith to illustrate them; but have taken a series, which I consider to be the only fair and reliable way of treating them:

In the first Table, marked A, where the fertility of the agricultural soils of Tasmania is compared with those of other Colonies, I have gone back from 1861 to 1858; which is quite enough for the purposes of comparison.

Table B, whose design is to show the extent of our trade in farm and forest produce with the principal Colonies we deal with, is spread over three years; which are enough to let the farmer and merchant see what may be the increase or decension of demand for any particular article. In those portions of the Table that have reference to our trade with New South Wales and Victoria in the years 1860 and 1861, I have taken my information from their own Returns, believing them to be more reliable than ours are. This course I would also have adopted in treating of our trade with New Zealand; but her commercial records are very clumsily got up, and bear, moreover, such unmistakable marks of inaccuracy that I have adopted our own in their stead. The last-named ones have also been used for all three Colonies for last year, for the simple reason that there are none others at present in the Colony to refer to.

Table C shows our trade in farm and forest produce with all countries for the same years as those used in Table B, and is necessarily drawn up from our own returns; as it is not possible to get a statement of our entire exports and imports from any other source that I know of. The object of this Table is to show what proportion of the national income is derived from the soil; which I shall have presently to use to enforce my arguments on the subject of improving our internal communications, without which our agriculture can never flourish.

Table D illustrates the trade in stock that is carried on by New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania; which is far more considerable than most persons have any idea of, as regards the two first-named Colonies. This Table, besides being designed for general information, is also meant to show that Tasmania does not stand alone in the non-increase of her sheep, which is common to all three.

Table E is a Five-years' Return of the wool trade of all the Southern Colonies (Swan River excepted), which has been compiled, not only for the purposes of general information, but to ascertain the weight of the fleece yielded by each Colony as proved by the exports of five consecutive years. The results thus ascertained should be satisfactory to the landowner and flockmaster of Tasmania, by showing him that the wool-producing qualities of his pastures are good when measured by the standard of those of other Colonies.

It will be observed of Table A, that hardly any information is to be had of the tillage of New Zealand; the official statistics of that Colony being remarkably silent thereon. I have, however, thrown into the Table the very little matter that is to be extracted from them.

It will appear from this Table that the farmers of none of the Colonies of the South are now so successful as our own are in the growth of the five principal crops raised in the Australias, namely—barley, oats, wheat, hay, and potatoes. In Tasmania the yield of that very exhausting crop, potatoes, has always been greater than that of any of the places named in the Table; and though our farmers, five years ago, were a good deal behind those of some of the other countries, particularly in the growth of barley and oats, this is now no longer the case. Both New South Wales and South Australia are greatly behind Tasmania, but Victoria treads very closely on her heels in every thing except hay and potatoes.

With regard to areas in cultivation, South Australia takes the lead of all the Colonies. The area of her tilled lands, if divided amongst her population, gives to each of them three roods and twenty-six perches more than Tasmania has; but her soils must be either poor or exhausted, as the yield of no single crop is comparable with ours. In barley she is behind us by more than seven bushels the acre; in oats by very nearly six; and in wheat by twelve and a half exactly. Of hay she produced twelve and a half cwts. less, and of potatoes forty-two cwts. less per acre. This was in 1861.

Neither New South Wales nor Victoria has an acre a head in tillage; and so long as this continues to be the case they must be considerable importers of the articles enumerated in the Table.

Table B is an exposition of our trade in farm produce, &c. with those countries with which we have our largest transactions, namely—Victoria, New South Wales, and New Zealand.

Commencing with Victoria, the trade is much in our favour, whether judged of by quantities interchanged or by the more doubtful figures which are supposed to represent the money value of that trade. Quantities, I may observe, may be generally relied on (even though our own Returns and those of New Zealand are not very perfect in this respect); but it is a well-known fact that the “declared values” in the official Returns are very arbitrarily affixed. The quantity column shows that our export trade with this great Colony is on the wane as regards oats and onions, and generally of forest produce; but in orchard produce, hay and potatoes, butter and some other articles, our sales are increasing.

Looking at the other side of the Table, our imports from Victoria are three or four times less than our exports thereto. These imports of ours are chiefly of live stock, without which the Victorian account against us would be almost nil.

I do not think that our export trade with New South Wales can be considered a declining one, even though the money value as affixed at the Custom House appears against us. Certain it is that there has been a greatly increased demand there for every article of farm produce, except potatoes, since 1861, and very generally since 1860. Our timber trade also seems to hold its ground very well in this market, even though there are doubtless some omissions in the official statement of this branch of our trade. For example—There is no record of the shipment to any mart whatever of a single lath or shingle from the Port of Hobart Town for all 1862, which is preposterous.*

Our imports of farm produce from New South Wales are of trifling value, nothing like a tenth of the value of our exports thither.

With New Zealand our trade is in a satisfactory condition, and exhibits each year a very considerable increase in the exports of articles of farm produce over the last one. In the three years for which the Table is made up our exports of flour have trebled; and of oats and wheat, whereof we supplied nothing whatever in 1860, we sold 49,000 bushels of the former and 18,100 of the latter. In the same space our sales of hay have gone up from 13 to 486 tons. The export of horses has increased from 312 to 1134 head; sheep from 20 to 5764 head; onions have risen from 2 to 48 tons, and potatoes from nil to 208 tons. In the timber trade our exports have multiplied four-fold.

Our imports of farm produce from New Zealand are very small.

These increases of our exports of farm supplies to New Zealand and New South Wales compensate for the decline of our trade in oats and timber with Victoria. Indeed the supplies which the latter Colony now takes from all countries of the five chief articles of agricultural produce, namely—oats, wheat, flour, potatoes, and hay, are all on the decline except wheat, which, strange to say, is much on the increase, not in Victoria only, but in New South Wales also, in face of an extending agriculture in both Colonies. The supplies of flour required by New South Wales are also much greater now than in former years; but the general demand for potatoes is retrogressing, though this does not seem to apply to the Tasmanian article, in so far at least as Victoria and New Zealand are concerned, which took about 1230 tons more of us last year than in 1860. Hay, also, is much less required in

* Of all the valuable collection of woods and other commodities sent to the International Exhibition, and worth two or three thousand pounds, there is no entry whatever in the official statistics either for 1861 or 1862; but the Hobart Town Returns always were a libel on the trade of the South.

the Colonies generally than in past years, though it will be satisfactory to see that the export of Tasmanian hay has gone on trebling (see Table C.) every year since 1860, as represented by the figures 152, 466, and 1435, which are the number of tons sent out of the country in 1860, 1861, and 1862; which it seems to me speaks well of the estimation this article is held in abroad.

The following Table may be of some use to our farmers; showing, as it does, the quantities of the five articles above named that our three principal customers take from all countries, from which (if read conjunctively with Table C.) they will learn one thing at any rate, namely—that it will not be wise to increase the culture of oats, at least for exportation. I must premise, however, by stating that the New Zealand Returns could not be used in the compilation except in a very limited degree, as they entirely ignore the receipt of very large supplies of flour and potatoes, which were actually shipped from other countries. I have, therefore, corrected her own meagre Returns by reference to the more reliable ones of other Colonies, though having no means of knowing what may have been shipped from England, America, or elsewhere, accuracy is not claimed for the New Zealand portion of the Table.

It will be seen from the above, that, though there is still a considerable demand for oats, potatoes, and hay, in nothing but wheat and flour is there any increase.

The recent great discoveries of pasture grounds in northern and central Australia will, no doubt, increase the demand for farm supplies, and create entirely new markets also; but it will be probably some considerable time before any change is seriously felt on this account: meanwhile it would be well if we looked around us and enquired if there is no opening for our produce in any of the older markets in this hemisphere.

Mauritius has now a population very nearly equal to that of New South Wales, namely—323,335 in December, 1862; but her cultivation, which is almost entirely confined to the production of sugar, leaves her in the hands of others for the simplest necessities of life. The trade of this place is worth more than £5,000,000 a year,—that is, of imports and exports, the former representing nearly £3,000,000 of the whole; a very large proportion of the last-named sum being spent in articles of food and fodder, of which she produces hardly anything. Her supplies are derived chiefly from England, France, India, Madagascar, and Australia, the latter coming in for the goodly share of nearly £450,000 in 1861, and for £391,227 in 1862; about a hundredth part of which only finds its way hitherward. In those commodities that are supplied by India and Madagascar we could not compete, on account of the cheap labour they can command. But whatever articles of farm produce England, France, and more particularly Australia can supply, we could contribute as easily as they. The following have been her requirements of farm produce in 1860 and 1861 :—

NOTE.—The articles marked with the single asterisk pay no duty. Those marked with two, pay each 4s. per cwt. Beer in wood pays 15s. per hogshead, and in bottle 9d. a dozen. Of the other articles I can find no mention made, and only the general remark, that all goods not declared "free of duty" will be charged 6 per cent. ad valorem.

The trade in several articles seems to have been a little over done in 1861, and hence, probably, the falling off in 1862; but this decline cannot be ascribed to increased cultivation, which is hardly perceptible except for sugar.

Her importations of fish, which I have not enumerated, are very great, being over 40,000 cwts. and 6000 barrels a year.

In this great traffic in farm produce, England, France, and Australia all take a conspicuous part; and if it pays their merchants, ours ought not to run much risk of loss by engaging in it also, as the former cannot buy farm produce cheaper than we can; and if it be an unprofitable trade, they would not continue in it year after year as they do. Customs' valuations do not indeed look inviting, but they are always arbitrary, and mostly doubtful.

The oxen required by Mauritius, ten or twelve thousands a year, are supplied, almost every head, by Madagascar. Of the 2087 horses imported during the last three years, 322 were obtained from Australia, but hardly any from thence before 1860. The bacon trade is nearly all in the hands of England, as also that in beer. Bran, flour, oats, and wheat are largely supplied by Australia, particularly the two first-named articles, which are nearly all sent from these Colonies. Butter and cheese are obtained chiefly from England, France, and the Cape, but the Australian trade therein is rapidly increasing now; and in 1861 she stood second on the list of the chief exporters, France being first in butter, the last-named country sending 1189 cwts. and Australia 609. Guano, so much needed in sugar culture, comes principally from Ichaboe, Peru, Bolivia, and the Cape. Potatoes are supplied chiefly by Australia and Reunion. The timber trade of Mauritius, though considerable, is not much participated in by these Colonies: many countries contribute to it, but none so largely as France. Of empty casks, large numbers are sent from Australia, and seem worth about 6s. each. Out of 4505 that Mauritius imported in 1862, 2508 were supplied by Australia.

Our exports of farm produce to Mauritius are insignificant. According to our own Returns they hardly reach £5000 a year; and these, small as they are, are wholly engrossed by Hobart Town; Launceston having taken no part in this trade since 1858, when she sent about £4200 of bran and wheat there.

As before stated, Mauritius cultivates almost wholly for sugar; and all her sheep and cattle together would hardly stock a couple of Australian Stations. Hence it follows that, with such a population as she possesses, she must long continue dependent on the world outside her for the commonest articles of sustenance.

The following is the Official Statement of the Land in cultivation in, and of the numbers of Live Stock belonging to, Mauritius in 1861 and 1862:—

LAND IN CULTIVATION.		LIVE STOCK.
1861.	1862.	1861.	1862.

In notes appended to the Agricultural Returns of both years, from which the above Statements are extracted, it is said that, excepting sugar, everything grown in Mauritius is consumed on the Estates that produce it; and that, "in most cases, it is insufficient for that purpose."

With the exception of the produce of the plantations, (sugar, molasses, and rum,) the exports of native produce do not reach £800 a year.

Mauritius appears to be a very wealthy Colony. The coin in circulation there, as far as can be ascertained, exceeds that held by the banks of either New South Wales or Victoria. It was believed to be about £2,350,000 in 1861; while the quantities in the banks of the other places were £1,547,390, and £2,056,206 for New South Wales and Victoria respectively. In 1862 the coin of Mauritius is reported to have increased to £2,750,522. The revenue of this diminutive place was last year £492,324, and the cost of its "Civil Establishment" £221,275.

Table C shows in detail the trade of Tasmania in farm produce, &c. with all countries for the same years as those used in B, and gives also a general statement of the value of all the imports and exports of Tasmania. It is compiled from our own returns, and has no other object but to show what proportion of the national income is derived from the land.

It will be observed, that the value of our entire Exports for the years referred to in the Table is declared at £2,787,282, whereof £2,327,987 came direct either from the farm or the forest, or 83½ per cent. of the whole. Our imports of the same articles were not nearly one-seventh of the exports.

The fact disclosed by this Table, that four-fifths of the national income is derived direct from the soil, should set the most unreflecting of us thinking on the subject of devising the means of improving the inland communications of the country, whose very imperfect condition is the chief impediment to the success of our agriculturists. A liberal Legislature will, no doubt, do its utmost to promote this success; and the promised contribution of a fourth of the Land Fund to this object will be an assistance of moment, though,—as this contribution will rarely reach £30,000 a year, it will not go very far in road-making, unless there be the heartiest co-operation with the central Government in all quarters to achieve this object. That farming in Tasmania may be profitable, when the neighbouring Colonies with their 1,450,000 acres under culture are competing with us, we must do all we can to enable our farmers to reach the principal markets and export Towns easily; but this they cannot do so long as our inland communications are as imperfect as at present.

Table D gives a view of the Live Stock, and the trade in Live Stock, of New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania, for five years dating backward from 1861. It shows that, in these three Colonies there has been no increase of sheep whatever in all that time*; and, though at first sight this may not appear to be correct with regard to Victoria, the explanations that follow will remove all doubt about the matter. It also proves that our importations of Live Stock, of which we hear so much, are not nearly so great in proportion to our population as those of Victoria are. Taking the last subject first, it will be found that of sheep she imports eight times as many as we do, and of horned cattle fifteen times more, though her population is only six times greater than ours; and even this calculation favours Victoria unfairly, for it will be noticed that she publishes no return for one of the years of the Table of her immense overland importations of sheep.

The results of the Table must leave no doubt that some such causes are in operation in the Colonies of New South Wales and Victoria, to prevent any increase of sheep, as we are living under here. These causes may be in part disease, but I apprehend that the chief one is that the pastures of each country are fully stocked, and will therefore carry no more in their present condition.

In treating of the declension of sheep in New South Wales during the past five years, it must not be forgotten she lost the important province of Queensland toward the close of 1859, and with it about a couple of millions of sheep. This description of stock was, however, declining before the separation took place; and the very last year of the Table shows a further declension of half a million more over the preceding one, and which is not half accounted for by the figures given in the exportation column. Her horses have, however, increased by about 53,000, and her horned cattle by more than 120,000 in the same space; though it will be observed that there was a great falling off in everything in 1861.

A cursory glance at the Victorian Stock Table gives the idea of an increase of 1,597,710 sheep in five years, and we do not see the true state of her affairs in this direction till we turn to the Import Column of the same Table, which at once explains that this increase has not been kept up by natural causes, but by drafting largely from the flocks of other Colonies to the number of 1,747,396 in the five years in question; the difference of the above figures representing, but in a faint degree only, the loss her flocks have sustained since 1857. I say in a faint degree, because by an omission in her Statistics she has published no Return of her overland imports for 1858, which would, doubtless, raise the figures that represent the actual decrease of her sheep to considerably more than half a million. That this import trade was as active then as ever, I have the authority of the Statistics of New South Wales for saying; for, on turning to page 166 of the same, (article "Export of Live Stock Overland during the Year 1858,") I find that Victoria received from her alone, no less than 439,185 head.

The condition of the Tasmanian flocks, in relation to numbers, though seeming to exhibit an increase of 102,553, have sustained a loss of 83,493, which latter number is the difference between this apparent increase and our importations of 185,046 sheep.

But here it is necessary to explain that, if we take the figures of our Returns for 1857, we shall find the numbers of our sheep for that year were set down at 276,503 more than the numbers in the Table. But this difference arises from an error made in the George Town Returns of that year, which has been long known to the gentlemen of the Colonial Secretary's Office, where our Statistics are prepared, though not discovered in time to amend it. This error will at once be seen by the following figures, which represent the sheep of the George Town District for the years 1856, 1857, and 1858:—

1858.....	62,980

It is to be regretted that there is now no better means of correcting this error than by taking a mean of the number of sheep for George Town for 1856 and 1858, which process I have adopted in correcting the Return. It will be observed that the error raises the number of sheep in the District under notice five and a half fold in a single year, which is ridiculous. As a pastoral District, George Town is a very poor one, and is full stocked at 60,000. The rock formation of its open grounds is generally granite, and its pastures consequently scanty, coarse, and heathy.

The stationariness of the number of sheep in Tasmania is nothing more than what we, in common with New South Wales and Victoria, may expect. Our pastures will carry no more than they do at present, and the sheep thereon are barely enough to yield such an increase as to supply consumption.

* I find that if I carried back the Table for ten years instead of five, it would show even a worse condition of things than it exhibits at present; but as five years will show all that I want, I shall not increase its dimensions.

It may not be out of place here to take a view of the slaughter in the two great centres of population during the three years ending 31st December, 1862; the Returns of the same having been obligingly furnished me by the Corporations of each City.

It will be seen from the above, that there has been a great increase in the demand for Home-bred Stock in the two great markets of the Colony of late. Even in the single year 1862 this increase amounted to 11,078 animals over the slaughter of 1861.

In connection with this subject, it will not escape notice that there has been a very remarkable falling off in the demand for meat in Launceston during the past two years; five or six thousand sheep, and about four hundred head of cattle less having been slaughtered there in 1862 than in 1860. In Hobart Town, on the contrary, there has been a largely increased consumption of animal food in the same time; for though about five thousand less sheep were killed last year than two years ago, there has been an increased slaughter of cattle of 1343 head, which I am told may be considered equal to about 15,000 sheep. Again, the slaughter of pigs has increased twenty fold more here than in Launceston; namely, 1235 against 63: and, while the consumption of lambs was stationary in the northern capital, there was an increase of 1835 in this city. The demand for veal has been unprogressive in both places.

Appearances, however, favour the belief that the importation of foreign stock must die out in a few years. The number of foreign sheep killed in the two towns was 15,589 less in 1862 than in 1860, and the imported cattle nearly 1000 less last year than two years since. Perhaps when the practice, which is daily gaining ground, of killing the trees on the open forest pastures becomes more general than at present, not only may our meat market be closed against our neighbours, but the yearly clip of wool be greater also. Runs that are thus treated (at a cost of about a couple of shillings an acre) do carry much more stock than those that are left unimproved; and, as there is a twofold advantage to be gained by it, it will, before many years have passed, be more generally adopted than at present.

The last Table of the series shows us what has been the wool produce of all the Southern Colonies for the five years terminating with 1861, and also the average weight of the fleece of each Colony. In this latter particular Tasmania occupies a very respectable position, standing third on a list of six. This fact, as it seems to me, speaks well for the character of the native grasses of the Colony; though, no doubt, climate and a very well-watered surface contribute their share to producing the weight of fleece which the exports of so many consecutive years assign her.

With reference to this position, however, I must state that several of our principal flockmasters, merchants, and woolstaplers, to whom I have referred this Table, have informed me that neither Victoria nor South Australia is so much in advance of Tasmania in respect to weight of fleece, as the figures in the average columns of the Table seem to assign them. They assure me that a very large proportion of the yearly clip of these two Colonies is shipped in the grease, which is not the case here, where almost every bale is perfectly clean. Indeed none of the Colonies, unless it be New Zealand, have such facilities for washing as we possess, and which have been turned to such good account at almost every homestead in the Colony.

It has, moreover, been stated to me by well-informed persons, that the average weights of fleece in New Zealand and Queensland are too low, which they say is ascribable to their Stock

Returns, which they believe to be unreliable. This is very probably the case; but I have taken such figures as they have chosen to publish, and if they are incorrect there is no help for it. Indeed, in relation to Queensland, it is to be observed that no one seems better aware of the fallaciousness of his own Stock Returns than the Registrar-General himself, who says, he is "most unwillingly compelled to admit that they can only be considered as an approximation." (Page 18 of Report of 1861.) The Returns of other places are very reliable.

The pastures of the occupied portions of Tasmania do not at present exceed six millions of acres, and are occupied on the average of years by about 1,650,000 sheep, 80,000 cattle, and many thousands of horses; a quantity of stock equal to a great deal more than two millions of sheep. This fact proves that, rough as a large proportion of these pastures are, they possess the quality of supporting stock well; and though we too often hear our own country unfavourably contrasted with the rest of the Australias by those who are fond of a random style of talking, still, whenever we come to figures, they will be found to give no countenance to these disparaging comparisons.

On the whole, I think the results of all the Tables, except D., should be gratifying to us all; and even that one discloses nothing but what may be expected of overstocked pastures and unimproved lands.

I remain, Sir,

Your very obedient Servant,

The Honourable the Colonial Treasurer.

J. E. CALDER.

NOTE.—The Grants are carried into those years when they were actually approved of, without reference to the dates of the Location Orders, except in cases where no other dates could be discovered.

Since the year 1853, the Pre-emptive Right Lands which have been paid for are included in the totals of the Lands sold.

* In this quantity are comprised 366,425 acres (in nine Grants), the property of the Van Diemen's Land Company, which, though located several years before, were not finally approved until this year.

† This sum includes £5,869 6s. being interest on the "Ross Reserve" sales.

J. E. CALDER, Surveyor-General.
